Bonded Warehousing

A Bonded warehouse is a warehouse in which the duties are unpaid are stored under bond and in the joint custody of the importer, or his agent and Customs officers.

A variety of business can benefit from using a bonded warehousing. Most companies do not sell their goods within four weeks of receiving stock yet Duty have paid up front. This is money that they could have legally avoided paying for a considerably longer period of time.

Stock that is in bonded warehousing avoids this advance Duty Payment on goods, which may not have been sold yet and may reside in stock for months.

Customs bonded warehousing facilities provides the ideal opportunity to the traders who trade with other countries and wish to move the cargo as in transit.

Marine Insurance

We can offer comprehensive cargo insurance coverage at exceptionally competitive rates suited to your needs.

Losses during transport occur daily. Cranes puncture containers, water makes its way in, and thieves get smarter faster than we can invent better locks and seals. For a fraction of your annual business costs you are given peace of mind, knowing that while your goods are in transit, and completely out of your control, your maximum financial loss is limited to your deductible.

Marine Insurance ensure the business continuity which may cost you a negligible amount on each consignment but it covers the risk on unforeseen and uncontrollable factors in transit.
